By the Statute of 10 Geo. II. it is enacted, 'That no Waterman (tho' free of the Company) shall take an Apprentice under 14 years old, nor above 20; and that Apprentices be taken for seven years at least, and be bound by Indentures, and inrolled in the Book of the Company, on Penalty of the Master's forfeiting 10*l.* and the Apprentices bound contrary to the true Intent of that Act, forfeit the Freedom, Privileges, and Advantages, otherwise obtained by Apprenticeships. Nevertheless, a Freeman may have two Apprentices at one Time, provided the first has served four Years when the other is taken, on Penalty of 10*l.* And the Proprietors of 12 Lighters may take two Apprentices at one Time; as may Proprietors of 40 Lighters take four, and no more, provided such Proprietors make Oath of owning such Number of Lighters, Barges, or flat-bottom'd Boats.'

For preventing of losing the Lives of Persons passing on the Water, Water, it is enacted, 'That no Tilt-boat, Row-barge, or Wherry, take at one Time more than thirty seven Passengers, and three more by the Way, nor in any other Boat or Wherry more than eight, and two more by the Way; nor in any Ferry-boat, or Wherry, allowed to work on Sundays, any more than eight Passengers, on Pain of forfeiting for the first Offence 5 l. for the second Offence 10 l. and for the third Offence, to be disfranchised for 12 Months from working on the River, and from enjoying the Privileges of the Company: And in Case any Person shall be drowned, where a greater Number of Passengers are taken in than is allowed, the Watermen shall be deemed guilty of Felony, and transported as Felons.'

By the same Statute it is further enacted, 'That every Tilt-boat shall be of the Burthen of 15 Tons, and any other Boat or Wherry three Tons, and that no Gravesend-boat, or Wherries, with close Decks, or Bails nailed down, and not moveable, be navigated. Tilt-boats only excepted, on the Penalty of 10 l.'

'Any Waterman or Wherryman who wilfully or negligently lose their Tide from Billingsgate to Gravesend, or from thence to Billingsgate, by putting ashore for Passengers, or by waiting or loitering by the Way, so that the first Passengers shall be set on Shore two Miles short of the Place to which they are bound, such Passengers shall be discharged from paying any thing for their Passage.

The Rulers of the Watermens Company are to appoint two or more officers to attend, one at Billingsgate, at every Time of high Water at London-bridge, and the other at Gravesend at the first Flood, who shall publicly ring a Bell for 15 Minutes, to give Notice to the Tilt-boats and Wherries to put off. And if such Wherryman, &c. do not immediately put off on ringing the said Bell, and do not effectually proceed on their Voyage, but put on Shore within two Miles of Billingsgate or Gravesend, as the Case may be; or if such Boats are not navigated by two sufficient Men, the youngest to be 18 years old at least; in every such Case, the Owners of such Boats shall forfeit 5 l. to be levied on the Boats, or Goods of the Owners of such Boats.

If the Company of Watermen neglect the setting up the said Bells, and appointing proper Persons to ring them, shall forfeit 40 l. and Persons appointed to ring the said Bells, forfeit 40 l. for every Neglect. Thus far the Act.

N.B.

N. B. You have no Occasion to bargain with any Waterman, but only tell him at what Stairs he is to land you, and to pay after the aforementioned Rates. The best Way is to offer him more Money than he demands, and bid him take no more than his Due: If he should take more than his Fare, and you have a Mind to correct him, go to Watermans-hall at the Old Swan Stairs, and acquaint the Clerk with your Business, giving him the Number of the Boat, he will summons the Waterman to the Hall, who will be punished according to the Nature of his Crime, whether it relates to Exaction, Sawciness, or other Misbehaviour.

If a Waterman takes more than his Fare, he is liable to forfeit 40 s. and suffer half a Year's Imprisonment.

If any Waterman set up a Sail, between Lambeth and London-bridge, upon Complaint as aforesaid, he forfeits for each Offence 5 s.

A succinct Description of ANTIENT BRITAIN; and an Account of the several Forms of Government in England, to the Norman Conquest.

BRITAIN was accounted by the antients the largest island in the world; and, as Borneo and Madagascar, which have been since discover'd, are not certainly known as to their magnitude, it may still be reckon'd so, notwithstanding the suppositions of geographers and travellers to the contrary. It was

was originally call'd Albion, from Alp, which in the celtic dialect signifies high, according to the appearance of its coasts. There are many conjectures as to the derivation of the word Britain; but the most natural is, that the Phœnicians, who traded to it for tin, call'd it Baratanac, or the land of tin; which word was soften'd into Britannia by the Grecians, who also traded here for that commodity, and was afterwards, from them, us'd currently by the Romans. The Britons were very little known before they were invaded by that people; for, tho' the merchants of Gaul and Belgium frequented their coasts, yet they had scarce any acquaintance with the inland part of the island; and all the relations we have before that time amount to this, that the country was very populous, and abounded with all sorts of tame and wild catt'e; that the houses were poorly and irregularly built, according to every man's humour or fancy, or the conveniencies he found in the situation. The inhabitants liv'd chiefly on milk, or flesh caught in hunting, and the skins of beasts were their general cloathing. Those of the coast were the most civiliz'd, occasion'd by their commerce with other nations, who came for their commodities, which were chiefly hides and tin; tho' they had also some silver, pearls of a bad colour, and a little iron. They were wholly govern'd by their druids in their religion and laws, and in other matters, by several petty princes, who rul'd the many nations into which they were divided, and from amongst them, in any time of common danger, their chief commander was chosen by general consent. and women were admitted to the succession of their principalities and general commands. They were esteem'd a brave and fierce people, till they were enervated by the manners and customs of the Romans. and the servitude they introduc'd: their arms were large swords and small shields; their forces consisted principally of foot, and they us'd chariots in fight, at the end of the axietrees of which, were fix'd sharp scythes, which gave cruel wounds, and great terror to their enemies. Such were the people and customs of Britain, when the Romans landed under Julius Cæsar, who was as much excited by revenge for the assistance they had given the Gauls against him, as induc'd by glory to such a conquest: however, he met with no easy task to procure a footing in the island, which was the last triumph of that potent republic, lic, for it was first conquer'd by the Romans under the emperor Claudius, and the Britons liv'd under their government 460 years, from that time to the reign of Honorius, when they abandon'd it to take care of their affairs nearer home.

The Britons did not enjoy their liberty a long while, but were over-run, their bravest youth being draughted away by their late masters to recruit their legions, by the Picts and Scots, their northern foes, against whose ravages and devastations receiving no assistance from the Romans, Vortigren, their king, address'd the Saxons for aid, a people seated in Germany between the Elbe and lower Rhine; so call'd from a weapon made use of by them, like a scythe, with the edge revers'd, which in their language had the name of Seax. The first recompence they received for their assistance, was the isle of Thanet, and soon after the whole county of Kent; but not contented with this reward, they resolv'd to extend themselves farther, and had such success over their poor harass'd masters and employers, that they drove them out of their own confines, and forc'd the greatest part to take sanctuary in Wales, the rest flying into Cornwall and Cumberland, where they maintain'd their retreat for some ages. The Saxons fond of their new acquisitions, call'd over greater numbers of their countrymen to secure themselves in them, who coming from several parts of the coasts of the north-west sea, arriv'd under different names, and amongst them the Angles from Schonen and Jutland, in such prodigious swarms, that they gave, at length, a new name to south Britain, which from them was call'd Anglesland, and for easier sound, England. These Anglo-Saxons subduing the whole body of the province, founded the heptarchy of seven kingdoms, the first kings of which were,

Hengist of Kent.	Anno	_____	_____	_____	455
Ella of the S. Saxons,		—	—	—	491
Cerdic of the W. Saxons,		—	—	—	519

Offa of the E. Angles,		—	—	—	557
Crida of Mercia,		—	—	—	584

These kingdoms were supported for some centuries with many incroachments; until Egbert, king of the west Saxons, taking advantage advantage of their divisions, reduc'd the heptarchy into one sole monarchy, and was crown'd king of England at Winchester in the year 819.

Fifteen Saxon monarchs govern'd with various success after Egbert, most of their reigns being principally taken up in wars with the Danes, who in great numbers frequently made incursions, and committed cruel ravages and disorders in England; from whence, tho' frequently driven, at length they became so powerful there, as to compel Edmund Ironside to divide the kingdom with Canute the Dane, who soon after, upon the murder of Edmund, seiz'd the whole; in which he was succeeded by Harold the first, and Hardicanute his sons. After the death of the latter, the crown return'd into the Saxon line, in the person of Edward the confessor, who dying without issue, it was usurp'd by Harold II. son to earl Godwin, who eight months after was slain in the battle of Hastings, between him and William duke of Normandy, afterwards call'd the conqueror.

Thus it appears the government of England, as one sole monarchy, is of about 900 years standing, from the time of Egbert: Scotland, the northern part, was a distinct sovereignty, of about 1100 years standing; and Wales was erected into a kingdom by Idwallo, son of Cadwallader, the last king of the Britons. They are all three now happily united under the name of Great-Britain, Wales being incorporated with England in the reign of Henry VIII. and Scotland united to it in the reign of queen Anne.

We shall, in the next place, give a brief description of GREAT-BRITAIN.

ENGLAND, the largest and richest part of Great-Britain, extends from the 50th to the 56th degree of N. latitude, the longest day in the northern parts being 17 hours and an half, and the shortest in the southern parts eight hours. From Berwick upon Tweed to the south parts of the isle of Wight, its length is 360 miles; and from Dover head east, to the land's end west, its breadth 285: in it there are 28 cities, or bishop's sees, tho' but 26 dioceses, and among these cities, London alone may contain one million of souls; 650 market towns.

an infinite number of villages, and the yearly rents of the lands of England are to the amount of 18 millions; whilst her wealth in jewels, plate, hoards of money, rich moveables, and merchandize, is immense, and her stock and credit exceeds those of all the nations in the universe. As to the situation of this country, it not only renders it secure from all its enemies without; but is commodious and advantageous for trade, its sea-coasts being furnished with abundance of good ports and havens, into which the wealth of the most distant regions is imported, and it is secured from irruptions of the sea in most parts, by the altitude of its cliffs. The air is generally heavy, the winters rainy and foggy, and the weather variable; notwithstanding which people live to as great ages as in any part of Europe; and in the summer, by the intervention of clouds, and the falling of rains, now and then, and the refreshing breezes from the western ocean, the heats are rendered very temperate; and in winter, deep snows and hard frosts are not so frequent as on the continent, occasioned by the moistness of the air in that season.

England abounds in large and fine rivers, which afford great plenty of excellent fish, and serve abundantly the uses of navigation and commerce; it is diversified, in the most agreeable manner, with arable land, meadows and woods, and here and there with rising hills, and its forests agreeably serve for the pleasure of various prospect, and the delights of hunting. The country in general wears an excellent and refreshing verdure, for nine months in the year, and is rendered rich and delightful by the fine rivers and streams which roll through it: Its fertility is admirable, especially for corn, cattle, fish and flesh. The soil is rank in some places, in others light and sandy, and elsewhere clayish, and for variety of fruits, roots and herbs, no country exceeds it; it has also a sufficient quantity of hares, wild-fowl, and poultry, and her plenty is so constant that a famine has not been known by her for 400 years. The richest wines are imported to us, tho' we can't boast of producing them; but as to beer or ale, cyder, perry, &c. we yield to no foreign nation. Our wooll is famous throughout the world, and the finest and most serviceable cloth is made of it; and leather we have, of the best and in the greatest quantity. We have plenty of materials for building, and as to firing, we have

wood,

wood, turf and pit-coal in abundance. Beasts of prey, England is so happy as to be entirely free from. In fine, providence has bestowed upon this happy region, all the advantages and all the charms that nature could furnish, or mankind could wish; and, in most respects, has made it the just boast of her natives, and the envy of the rest of the world.

WALES, for the most part is very mountainous; yet yields wherewith to subsist its inhabitants, and several parts of the principality, are as fruitful as any in England. Its extent is nearly equal to a fifth part of England, or the four counties of Norfolk, Suffolk, Essex and Kent; it contains 751 parishes, 4 cities, and 58 market towns. The air is clear and sharp, the cattle small, but provisions good and cheap; it abounds wonderfully with goats, and they have plenty of wood, coal and turf for fuel. It has many fine rivers, and as to its harbour of Milford Haven, it is such a noble one that 1000 ships may ride there without seeing each other. Wales is divided into North and South, each part containing 6 counties, which, except three, are all watered by the sea.

SCOTLAND, now called North-Britain, is about 250 miles in length, and about 100 miles in breadth, at the broadest part, the whole country being so intersected by inlets of the sea, that every house is within 50 miles of salt water. A vast number of islands lie round about her and belong to her, divided into three classes, the Hebrides or Western islands, the Orcades or Orkneys, and the Shetland isles, besides several in the Frith of Edinburgh. The air of Scotland is generally wholesome, and being purified by frequent high winds, is clearer than that of England, which contributes greatly to the health of the inhabitants, and the clearness of their understandings. Their longest day is 18 hours, and their shortest night about 5 hours and 45'; but in the isle of Sky, in the summer solstice, the night is but an hour and half; and about June, in Orkney, one may see to read all night. The soil produces all things necessary for human life, and tho' the country in general is mountainous and full of heaths, yet it has many large and fruitful vallies, abounding with corn and grass; and, in a word, Scotland produces all sorts of grain that are found in England. The most common grain is oats, much exceeding those of England, of which, in the Highlands, they make good bread and drink, and other palatable food.

They

They have most sorts of fruit in Scotland, and good roots both for food and physick. The Highlands afford good timber; they have coal in many parts of the country, and in the north, firewood, turf, peat, heath, broom and furze, enough for fuel. They have large flocks of sheep and herds of black cattle, much smaller than those in England, but the leather made of their hides is not fit for shoes. Their wooll is fit for singrams, shalloons, &c. They have store of excellent flax, of which they make great quantities of linen, coarse and fine. No other country can compare with Scotland for fish, eggs and fowl, which not only afford food and feathers to the inhabitants, but an inexhaustible fund for merchandize. It has mines of many sorts of metal, quarries of fine stone, mountains of marble, and beds of agate, pearl and coral; it affords many and good harbours, and a number of fine rivers, of which the most convenient for trade are the Forth and Clyde.

To this short description, it may not seem improper to add a few words relative to the kingdom of Ireland, by way of supplement.

Ireland, subject for many centuries to the dominion of Great-Britain, lies between $51^{\circ} 15'$ and $55^{\circ} 15'$ of N. latitude, so that the longest day is 16 hours and an half in the south parts, and in the north 17 hours and a quarter. In length it is about 242 miles, and the greatest breadth 150 miles. The air is very mild and temperate, which occasions it to be cooler in summer and warmer in winter than in England; it is however excessive moist, from which the inhabitants are troubled much with loosenesses and rheums, which distempers also particularly attack strangers. The soil of Ireland is prodigiously fruitful; but fitter for grass and pasture than corn, and, in some places the grass is so long and so sweet, from the rankness of the soil, that the cattle would surfeit if they were not sometimes hindered from eating. The wonder of Ireland is, that it produces no venomous creatures, and that none such will live there; tho' they have some ravenous beasts, particularly wolves. It has vast flocks of sheep, which they shear twice every year, good horses, and infinite numbers of cattle, which indeed are the wealth of the inhabitants. Bees, are not only hiv'd, but are found in bodies of trees, and holes in the earth; and foxes and hares, wild and tame fowl, and fish, especially salmon and herring abound in the utmost plenty. Her principal riches and commodities are cattle, hides, tallow, suet, butter and cheese, wood, salt, honey, wax, furs, hemp, &c. &c. In short, there is nothing wanting in Ireland either for pleasure or profit, and every thing is plentiful and cheap. It is divided into four provinces; Munster, Leinster, Connought and Ulster, and those into 32 counties.

Of the Government of GREAT BRITAIN.

The foundation of this monarchy are its laws, which are the rule of the king's government, and of the obedience of the people. These laws may be enumerated thus, the Common Law, or common custom, which in length of time has obtained the force of laws; the Statute Laws, or laws made from time to time by king and parliament; the Martial Law, which concerns only the military in time of actual war; the Forest Law; the Civil Law, made use of in the court of admiralty, the universities, all spiritual courts, the earl-marshal's court, and in foreign treaties; which is the law of nations, founded on the common reason of mankind; the Canon Law, relating merely to religion. By their own laws, Britons are free, as no law can be made or repealed but by their own consent, given by their representatives in parliament, which makes their subjection to laws not forced, but voluntary. By these laws, no man can be imprisoned without cause shewn, nor may be denied a writ of habeas corpus to bring him to trial; which cannot be but by a jury of his peers. No taxes or loans can be levied in England without the people's consent, and none are to be impressed for soldiers but such as acts of parliament direct, upon particular emergencies.

The monarchy of Great Britain is so limited, as to secure the people's liberty, and not to diminish the kingly power; it is a mixt government, of king, lords and commons, who are all three a check upon each other; and this excellent form of government is now fixed on so sure a basis as nothing can remove. The king has all the ensigns of royalty, and all the reasonable marks and prerogatives of sovereignty that a wise prince can expect, who rules over a brave and free people: he is supreme head of the church, is lord paramount, or supreme landlord of all the lands in the kingdom, and has the supreme right of patro-patronage in the church. This monarchy is independent, and owns no superior upon earth, and its kings never yielded precedence to any sovereign, but the emperor, and that upon the score of antiquity only.

When the king is a minor, a regent is appointed, either by the king his predecessor, or the parliament: thus, in view of a minority upon the death of his present most gracious majesty, the princess dowager of Wales, is, by act of parliament, declared regent of the kingdom, and guardian of the king's person, with a council of regency to assist her; and, in this appointment, his majesty's directing wisdom and paternal affection to his people, is very visible, since, in all human probability, 'tis a provision most likely to produce the salutary ends proposed, and to be a standing precedent upon future occasions.

The succession to the crown is commonly in a lineal course of descent; so that the crown of England is hereditary, and the monarchy properly without an inter-regnum; and the successor takes possession of the crown before proclamation or coronation. 'Tis true, the right line has been often interrupted, and at this time, the Roman catholic line, tho' nearest in blood, stand all excluded by the act of settlement, which act is become a new fundamental part of the British constitution, and it has always been an undoubted maxim, that the parliament can alter the line of succession, whenever religion and property are in danger.

The design of parliaments is to keep up the constitution, to support the honour of the crown, and to maintain the rights and privileges of the people; to raise the requisite subsidies, make necessary laws, and redress all public grievances. The power of calling, adjourning, proroguing and dissolving them, is entirely in the sovereign.

For Scotland, since the union, 16 peers are elected, by their noblesse, to represent them in the house of lords, and 45 representatives are sent from thence to the house of commons.

The whole number of the representatives of the commons of Great Britain, is 558; but when 300 of them are met, 'tis reckoned a full house, and only 40 make an house.

The house of lords are the hereditary counsellors of the crown, and the constitution has lodged a judicial power in them; they are the supreme court of judicature, and from them lies no appeal.

peal. The king's courts at Westminster, are, the Court of Chancery, in which the lord-chancellor is the sole judge; but has 12 assistants, called masters in chancery; the first of whom is called Master of the Rolls; this is a court of equity. The Court of King's Bench, which is the highest court of common law; there are four judges of it; the first of which is called lord chief-justice of the king's bench. The Court of Common-Pleas, where pleas between subject and subject are tried, according to the strictness of law; it has likewise four judges, the first being called lord chief-justice of the common-pleas. The Court of Exchequer, consisting of a court of equity, held before the chancellor of the exchequer and the barons; and a court of law held only before the barons; of whom there are four, and the chief is called lord chief-baron of the exchequer. The court of the Dutchy of Lancaster, wherein the chancellor of the dutchy presides.

There are courts called assizes, held twice a year, in every county of England, to distribute justice to the people; the 12 judges being commissioned for that purpose, which is called going the circuit.

The king appoints every year a sheriff to each county, who holds courts for all civil causes, under 40 s. and courts-leet, and courts-baron, are held under lords of manors, by their stewards, in their respective districts. In many places of England Courts of Conscience are held, for the recovery of small debts. After these courts, chiefly guided by common law, it may not be amiss just to mention the court of admiralty, ruled by the civil law, wherein all maritime causes are heard; the earl-marshal's court, or court of chivalry; forest courts, and the spiritual courts, where all ecclesiastical causes are tried and debated. In North Britain, are the court of session, in which all civil causes are tried, composed of a number of judges, called lords of session; the courts of judiciary, exchequer, and chancery; sheriffs courts, courts of regality, and barons courts; the judges of the judiciary court going the circuits as in England; the commissary courts, the heralds office. Since the late rebellion, the heretiable jurisdictions, and clanships in Scotland, are abolished; and it is to be hoped the encouragement given to our fisheries on that coast, will make the highlanders as industrious as brave.

As we have before given a little picture of Ireland, we shall just add, under this section, that it is governed by a lord-lieutenant, tenant, and in his absence by lords-justices. The parliament, courts of justice, and the whole department of their government, very nearly resembles that of England, of which indeed it is a copy.

Of the TRADE of Great-Britain ; her conveniences for Travelling, and of the Post and Packet-Boats, for Intercourse of Letters.

No nation in Europe excels Great-Britain in trade and commerce, for which the nature of its government and the genius of its people, as well as its commodious situation, has most peculiarly and happily fitted it. Her manufactures, particularly that of wooll, employ an infinite number of artists ; her domestic trade is surprizing ; but if we were to calculate the value and extent of her foreign trade, for there is not a port in the known world where her sons are not known, and their influence felt; the very mention of the several branches thereof, would exceed the compass we are forced to allow ourselves. Her principal commodities for traffic are, wooll, tin, lead, copper, pit-coal, great guns, warlike stores, corn, herrings, pilchards, salmon, leather, saffron, sattin, velvet, silk stockings, plush, all sorts of hardware, and optical and mathematical instruments. She makes vast advantage also of the products of her plantations in America; as, sugar, tobacco, indigo, cocoa nuts, rice, &c. in return for which, the settlers take the products and commodities of their native country. The principal trading companies in Great Britain are, the East-India S. Sea and the Turkey companies, the company of merchant-adventurers, the Russia, Ham-burgh, and Hud'on's-bay companies. To promote the trade of Great Britain, &c. a council of commerce, called the board of trade is appointed, which sits at Whitehall.

The accommodations for travelling in this country, and the entertainment upon the roads exceed, perhaps, those of any other country in the world; and horse-hire is so little expensive, that few people travel, at any distance from the principal towns, without using them. The conveniency of hackney-coaches and chairs, in London, gives great ease and pleasure to the inhabitants, and the stage-coaches and carriers, for goods and passengers, that are constantly going and coming, render the communication easy with all parts of the united kingdoms. The post-office is a safe and sure conveyance for letters to all parts of Great Britain, at a very easy rate; a letter of a sheet being conveyed 80 miles for 4d. a double letter for 3d. and an ounce of letters for 1s. 2d. under 80 miles a single letter is 3d. a double letter 5d. and an ounce but 1s. and the post is so expeditious, that every 24 hours it goes 120 miles, and in five or six days an answer may be had from a place 300 miles distant from the writer, and, to wherever the court resides, or to any stations for the royal fleet, or principal trading towns, a person may send, and hear from, every day save Sunday. With all possible celerity foreign letters are also conveyed; for which purpose packet-boats are appointed, as 3 to France, 3 to Holland, 3 to Ireland, 2 to Spain, and 2 to Flanders. There are also packet-boats appointed, to and from America.

The following Tables shew the Beginning of every King's Reign from William the Conqueror, to his present Majesty King George II. with the Year of our Lord answering to each Year of any Reign. To which are added, some of the most remarkable Events in each Reign.

NORMAN LINE.

1. WILLIAM I. born 1027, began his reign October 14, 1066.

A.D.	1	WILLIAM duke of Normandy (commonly called William the 1067	1	Conqueror) upon very slight and improbable grounds, pretending
68	2	a right to the English crown, landed in Suffex, September 8, 1066,
69	3	and on October 14 following, obtained the victory in the me-
70	4	morable battle of Hasting's, in which king Harold, most of the 71	5	English nobility, and an incredible number of private soldiers
72	6	were slain. He accepted the crown as the gift of the people, and 73	7	his coronation was performed on Christmas-day following; a
74	8	ceremony he repeated every year of his reign. Repenting a num-
75	9	ber of violent and furious actions, he died of a fever, heightened
76	10	by an accident, September 9, 1087, and was buried at Caen, in
77	11	Normandy, after his son had been obliged to pay for the ground
78	12	he was buried in, which was claimed as an inheritance by a Nor-
79	13	man gentleman. He erected the courts of chancery and exche-
80	14	quer, establish'd Curfew , made a survey of the value of every man's
81	15	estate in England and Wales, which was entered in two books
82	16	called the great and little doomsday-books, levied a tax of 6 s. for 83	17	every 100 acres of land, inforc'd the forest laws and desolated a
84	18	large tract of land to make the New Forest in Hampshire, and 85	19	enacted that whoever kill'd a deer should have his eyes put out,
86	20	built the Tower of London, and oppos'd the pope.

2. WILLIAM II. born 1057, began his reign September 9, 1087.

1087		This prince was crown'd 18 days after his father's death, and
88	1	was surnamed Rufus, from being red-hair'd; he was a cruel, dis-
89	2	solute and covetous prince, and began his reign by seizing vacant
90	3	benefices to his own emolument; he grievously oppressed the 91	4	English and maintained a constant war with the Scots; he built
92	5	Westminster-hall, and the wall round the Tower, and rebuilt
93	6	London bridge. He was shot by an arrow, in the New Forest, and 94	7	was buried at Winchester. In his time the holy war was under-
95	8	taken, which continued three hundred years; Goodwin sands,
96	9	near four hundred acres, were overflow'd; great part of London
97	10	was consumed by fire, and a spring in Berkshire ran three days
98	11	with blood. He made frequent incursions into Wales, and be-
99	12	came master of Normandy.

3. HENRY I. born 1058, began his reign August 1, 1100.

AD.

01 1 He was the youngest son of the Conqueror, and succeeded, by the 02 2 good-will of the people, with whom he was in great esteem, to 03 3 the prejudice of his brother Robert, who was then engaged in the 04 4 holy war, and, asserting his right some time after, was made pri-05 5 soner, confined in Cardiffe castle many years, and, as some say, 06 6 had his eyes put out. He began his reign by the reformation of 07 7 abuses which had crept into the government in his brother's time, 08 8 and recalled the neglected muses to their former abode at Cam-09 9 bridge; he had many disputes with that troublesome prelate arch-10 10 bishop Anselm, whose haughty and turbulent behaviour in sup-11 11 port of the pretended rights of the church, imbittered many hours 12 12 of his reign; he planted a colony of Flemings about Ross and 13 13 Pembroke, in Wales. He marry'd Matilda, his daughter, to the 14 14 emperor Henry IV. and imposed a tax of 3s. on every hide of 15 15 land to provide her portion; being the first king who raised such 16 16 a provision for his eldest daughter; tho' the example has been 17 17 followed ever since: He married the niece of Edgar Atheling, a 18 18 match very agreeable to the English, as it promised them a resto-19 19 ration of their Saxon monarchs. His great care to secure the 20 20 crown to his son, was frustrated by the shipwreck of that prince 21 21 in his return from France, who, together with great numbers of 22 22 the nobility, soldiers and sailors, was drowned on the English 23 23 coast. The king was never after seen to laugh, and died in Au-24 24 gust, 1135. He was learned, prudent, and temperate, and his 25 25 person beautiful; but had some very ill qualities to counterbal-26 26 lance those excellencies; amongst which, his inordinate love of 27 27 women was very predominant; a proof of which was his great 28 28 number of bastards, amounting to fourteen. Provisions were so 29 29 cheap in his reign, that a shilling would purchase a day's corn for 30 30 an hundred men, and a groat was the price of a sheep. A great 31 31 plague happened. The water so low in the Thames for twenty-32 32 four hours that people rode across, between the bridge and the 33 33 Tower. A great dearth. Two great earthquakes. A very re-34 34 markable Aurora Borealis. He was buried in the abbey at 35 35 Reading, which is now almost entirely demolished, and no sepulchral monuments remain, tho' several kings were buried there.

4. STEPHEN, born 1105, began his reign December 2, 1135.

37 1 He was grandson of the Conqueror, and by his interest with the 38 2 clergy, was enabled to usurp the crown to the prejudice of the em-39 3 press Matilda, notwithstanding he had sworn fealty to her; but the 40 4 struggles she made to recover her right, and the miseries of such a 41 5 contention formed the principal transactions of this reign: the king 41 6 and the empress were alternately beaten, and Stephen was a prisoner

1142 7 soner and in chains, a considerable time. The dreadful calamities 43 8 these civil wars occasioned were terminated by Stephen's adopting 44 9 Henry, Matilda's son, as his successor, which act was facilitated 45 10 by the death of his deserving son Eustace: the need he had of the 46 11 clergy exalted the mitre above the crown, and enabled them to in-47 12 troduce the study of the canon law. The Welch made many waste-48 13 ful eruptions in his reign, and he yielded Carlisle and the earldom 49 14 of Huntington to the Scots. He was, all things considered, a 50 15 good and heroic prince, died October 25, 1114, and was buried 51 16 in the abbey of Feversham. In this reign great part of the city was 52 17 burnt, from Aldgate to St. Paul's, together with the timber 53 18 bridge of London.

The Line of PLANTAGENET.

5. HENRY II. born 1134, began his reign October 25, 1154.

1154 Pursuant to the agreement between this prince and Stephen, he 55 1 quietly ascended the throne, and was one of the most illustrious 56 2 princes that ever filled it. His prosperity, however, was con-57 3 stantly alloy'd by the many rebellions of his sons, sometimes in-58 4 cited thereto by his queen; and his disputes with archbishop Bec-59 5 ket, the haughtiest prelate that ever liv'd; who shew'd the ut-60 6 most ingratitude to this prince who had raised him from the dust: 61 7 the former of these evils followed him to the close of his life, and 62 8 hasten'd his end, and drew a solemn curse from him upon his 63 9 children; the latter was not entirely terminated by the murder 64 10 of Becket, which was perpetrated by certain of the king's do-65 11 mestics, incited thereto by some rash words that had fallen on 66 12 him; for the king suffered many mortifications from it, was 67 13 obliged to stoop to the clergy, and do penance at his shrine, where 68 14 he received eighty lashes from the monks. He caused Henry, his 69 15 eldest son, to be crown'd in his life-time, and the estates of the 70 16 kingdom to swear fealty to him. Fair Rosamond was his mistress.
 71 17 He conquer'd Ireland, his army defeated the Scots and took their 72 18 king prisoner, whom he forced to do homage for his kingdom, and 73 19 surrender the lands given him by Stephen; he restored the laws 74 20 of St. Edward, and was the first that appointed judges of assize 75 21 for the several circuits. In time of a famine in Mans and Anjou, 76 22 he supplied 10,000 people with food, out of his stores, from April 77 23 1st, till the corn was ripe. He took care to secure wrecks, and 78 24 laid an heavy penalty on those who plundered on such occasions.
 79 25 He used to say in his prosperity, The whole world was but sufficient 80 26 for one great man. Coaches were first used in his reign; the city 81 27 of Gloucester burnt by the king's command; he and the king of 82 28 France perform the office of yeomen of the stirrup to the pope; 83 29 and the king of France came in pilgrimage to Becket's tomb. He 84 30 died of grief in Normandy, July 6, 1189, and was buried at Fon-85 31 tevraud, and his corpse being met by his son, Richard, as it was 86 32 carrying to the grave, blood gushed out of the nose and mouth, 87 33 which moved Richard greatly with a sense of his disobedience.

6. RICHARD I. born 1156, began his reign July 9, 1189.

AD.

1189 | He was for his valour surnamed Cœur de Lion, and had hardly any 90 | 1 other good quality. He succeeded his father Henry II. and was 91 | 2 scarcely eight months in England during his whole reign, in
 92 | 3 which the people groaned under taxes and oppressions. He sauntered
 93 | 4 to the holy war with 350000 men, and in a great battle heroically
 94 | 5 defeated the great Saladin, and killed 50000 infidels. As he re-
 95 | 6 turned from this expedition he was shipwrecked on the coast of
 96 | 7 Istria, taken prisoner by his enemy the duke of Austria, and sur-
 97 | 8 rendered to the emperor. He was shot by an arrow, at Limosin,
 98 | 9 and buried by his father. Fitzalwyn, first lord-mayor of London.

7. JOHN, born 1167, began his reign April 6, 1199.

1199 | He met with nothing but misfortunes during his whole reign,
 1200 | 1 principally occasioned by his many vices and his perfidious con-
 01 | 2 duct. His disputes with his nephew, Arthur, whom at last he 02 | 3 made prisoner, and it is believed murder'd, his wars with his 03 | 4 barons and with the king of France, who stripp'd him of most of 04 | 5 his Norman dominions, and his quarrels with the pope and the
 05 | 6 monks, employed him from the time of his mounting the throne
 06 | 7 to the day of his death, which, after an unhappy reign, happened
 07 | 8 at Newark, thro' grief for the loss of his baggage; and he was 08 | 9 buried at Worcester. He surrender'd his crown to the pope, who 09 | 10 had depos'd him, and put him under an interdict, and laid it at 10 | 11 the feet of his legate: and yet some good things were done by 11 | 12 him, or he was forced to do, for the benefit of England; Magna
 12 | 13 Charta was confirmed, the excellent civil government of London,
 13 | 14 and many other cities appointed; the Cinque Ports received those 14 | 15 privileges they now enjoy; the English laws were established in 15 | 16 Ireland, and London bridge was built with stone.
 16 | 17

8. HENRY III. born 1207, began his reign October 19, 1216.

1217 | 1 At nine years of age this young prince, tho' Eleanor, sister of 18 | 2 prince Arthur was then living, who had been a prisoner in Bristol
 19 | 3 castle 39 years, and died there, came to the throne. During the 20 | 4 king's minority, the government and care of his person were 21 | 5 committed to the earl of Pembroke, and after his death, to the 22 | 6 bishop of Winchester. He proved throughout his reign, which 23 | 7 was the longest in the English annals, that he was a weak prince,
 24 | 8 and of a very narrow genius, inconstant and capricious, and 25 | 9 fraught with notions of arbitrary power, which were the causes
 26 | 10 of most of the troubles in his reign, to which troubles, however, may

1227 11 may be attributed the liberties and privileges we enjoy to this day, 28 12 and the origin of the house of commons. The regent was so 29 13 happy in the beginning of his reign to defeat the dauphin, who 30 14 had been invited over by the barons to oppose king John, and to 31 15 oblige him to leave the kingdom and the barons to submit. The 32 16 king of Scotland did homage to him, and the prince of Wales was 33 17 quieted. In the seventh year of his reign he declared himself of 34 18 age and resumed the crown lands, soon after which a war was 35 19 begun with France, the aids for which were not granted till he 36 20 promised to see the charters of his father observed. His favou-37 21 rites, Hubert de Burgh, and the bishop of Winchester, most per-38 22 nicious ministers, led him into many practices that alarmed the 39 23 nobles and irritated the commons, and after the disgrace of the 40 24 former, the bishop, principally to secure his own authority, sent 41 25 for 2000 of his countrymen, who were put into all places of trust 42 26 and profit. The barons were so exasperated at those barefac'd in-43 27 fringements of their rights, that they refused to meet the king in 44 28 parliament, and threatened to chuse another, if he did not ba-45 29 nish the bishop and his poitcevin; but, being driven to violent 46 30 measures by the councils of the prelate, he commenced a war 47 31 with them, in the very beginning of which his army was routed, 48 32 and this war was terminated by the king's opening his eyes to the 49 33 remonstrances of the archbishop of Canterbury, banishing the bi-50 34 shop of Winchester to his diocese, and removing the foreigners 51 35 from their posts. In foreign affairs he behaved idly and weakly, 52 36 as in his domestic, suffering his allies to be oppressed, and his 53 37 enemies to triumph by his unaccountable sloth and supineness.
 54 38 Whenever Henry stood in need of the assistance of his people, he 55 39 was ready to grant them any favours and to renew their privi-
 56 40 leges, and was profuse of his promises to them; but when the aids 57 41 he wanted were obtained, they were as scandalously broken as they 58 42 were easily given. No wonder that such a prince should never 59 43 enjoy either the affection or the confidence of his people. He 60 44 joined with the pope in oppressing the clergy; and as to the 61 45 Jews, they were subject to his exactions upon every emergency.
 62 46 He was the first sovereign prince that was told to his face by a sub-63 47 ject (the earl of Leicester) that he lied. His brother Richard, in 64 48 the 40th year of his reign, was chosen king of the Romans; and 65 49 a few years after, what, more emphatically may be called the 66 50 barons wars commenced, and continued, with various success, 67 51 till within four or five years of his death, which happened on 68 52 November 15, 1272; he was buried in Westminster-abbey. In 69 53 his time the Tower of London was twice fortified and demolished 70 54 in one year, and, by the king's order, a chest of pure gold was 71 55 made for the bones of Edward the Confessor; and trial by fire 72 56 and water ordeal was laid aside.

9. EDWARD I. born 1239, began his reign November 16, 1272.

AD. Care was taken by the nobility to secure the crown, and provide 1273 1 for the safety of the government, till the arrival of their new so-74 2 vereign, who at his father's death was returning from the holy 75 3 wars, with a reputation still more encreased since his departure; 76 4 and, at his return, was received as a prince by whom they hoped 77 5 all the evils of the late reigns would be redressed; and his coro-78 6 nation, at which two sovereign princes assisted, was a festival of 79 7 the utmost joy to the whole nation. He was indeed a prince of 80 8 very noble qualities, and particularly remarkable for his valour 81 9 and prudence. England received great advantages from his ad-82 10 ministration, and he made himself beloved by his subjects, and re-83 11 spected by his neighbours: He conquered Wales, and by giving 84 12 them his son, born in their country, for their prince, secured 85 13 the allegiance of that turbulent people, which his prede-86 14 cessors had attempted in vain; and, ever since, the eldest son 87 15 of our king bears the title of prince of Wales. He asserted a 88 16 right of sovereignty over Scotland, and in pursuance thereof de-89 17 clared Baliol, king, and made him appear before his parliament at 90 18 Westminster, to answer a complaint made against him by the earl 91 19 of Fife; which so incens'd him, that he made an alliance with 92 20 France, and declared to Edward, he would be no longer his vas-93 21 sal: Edward, upon this, invades Scotland, which he subdued, 94 22 and Baliol resigned his crown into his hands: he brought from 95 23 thence the crown and sceptre, and the famous stone of Scone, 96 24 having first burnt all their records; he made three other expe-97 25 ditions against the Scotch, in all which he was victorious. And 98 26 he made war on France with less success. He imprison'd the 99 27 prince of Wales for an act of injustice. He executed 280 Jews for 1300 28 clipping and coining, and soon after banished them the realm; he 101 29 enacted the statutes of Mortmain and Quo Warranto, and checked 102 30 the pride of the clergy. His queen, Eleanor, dying near Lincoln, 103 31 was brought to be buried at Westm. and where the corps rested, 104 32 crosses were erected, as at Coventry, Tottenham, Cheapside and 105 33 Charing-cross. He died of the bloody-flux, and was buried at 106 34 Westminster.

10. EDWARD II, born 1284, began his reign July 7, 1307.

1307 This prince, of whom the nation conceived great hopes, soon ap-08 1 peared to have a very mean genius, and disposed to gratify his 09 2 prevailing humour let the consequences be what they would, and 10 3 to have no capacity to remedy the mischiefs he brought upon 11 4 himself. His very first step was contradictory to his oath and the 12 5 injunctions of his deceased father, in recalling his favourite Ga-13 6 vesston. He married Isabella, of France, and no wedding was 14 7 ever more magnificent, there being present four kings, four queens,

2315 8 queens, besides great numbers of princes, princesses, lords and 16 9 ladies. His partiality to his odious favourite, soon drew on him 17 10 the hatred of the people and the resentment of the queen, and oc-18 11 casioned the raising an army by the barons, who soon got Gaveston 19 12 into their hands, and struck off his head. This war was soon 20 13 ended; and the king was defeated by the Scots, in the famous battle 21 14 of Bannockbourn, to the great dissatisfaction of his subjects, who 22 15 soon after suffered a three years famine, which destroy'd many 23 16 people. Another war with the barons, in which they were worst-24 17 ed, and many of them executed; soon after they had the upper 25 18 hand, depos'd and imprisoned the king, and he was put cruelly to 26 19 death. In this reign a great earthquake happens.

N: EDWARD III. born 1312, began his reign January 25, 1326.

1327 1 This excellent prince who was called to the throne on the depo-28 2 sition of his father, soon began to perceive that the queen his 29 3 mother acted with too scandalous a familiarity towards Mortimer, 30 4 and that the late unhappy end of the king his father was not en-31 5 tirely without their privy; he surprized him by stratagem, had 32 6 him executed at Tyburn, and confined the queen, in which con-33 7 finement she spent the rest of her days, and assumed the reins of 34 8 government himself: Soon after which the illustrious black 35 9 prince was born to him by his queen Philippa, of Hainault, and 36 10 he chastised the Scotch severely for their late inroads. He de-37 11 manded the crown of France of Philip, in right of his mother, 38 12 and on his refusal, levied war against him, and after several 39 13 truces, defeated the forces of France in the ever memorable battle 40 14 of Cressly, in which the prince of Wales performed wonders; 41 15 before which he had given a total overthrow to the French fleet, 42 16 and destroy'd most of their ships. This war continued many 43 17 years, and, amongst others, the famous battle of Poitiers was 44 18 fought which yielded immortal honour to the black prince, and 45 19 wherein the king of France was taken prisoner, whom he brought 46 20 to England, where at the same time another royal prisoner, Da-47 21 vid, king of Scotland, had the fortune to be; who was taken by 48 22 queen Philippa, after defeating the Scotch army. In the course 49 23 of this war, was the taking Calais, after a year's siege. David, 50 24 after 11 years confinement, was released for a ransom of 10,000 51 25 marks; and John, king of France, became liberate after four 52 26 years imprisonment, for a ransom of 500000 crowns; almost all 53 27 France was conquered, and Edward took the title of King of 54 28 France, quarter'd the French arms with his own, and added the 55 29 motto, Dieu et mon droit; but the treaty of Bretigny gave some 56 30 repose to that harrassed country: In this reign, a citizen of Lon-57 31 don entertain'd the kings of England, France, Scotland and Cy-58 32 prus, in a sumptuous manner, at his own house: Thomas Hack-59 33 wood, an Englishman, and journeyman taylor, signaliz'd himself

1360 34 in the Italian wars, and rose to the highest posts. Dr. Wickliff, 61 35 the first reformer, flourish'd. The order of the garter was in-62 36 stituted, and a great plague swept away half the people of the na-63 37 tion. The queen died in 1369, much lamented, and the black 64 38 prince in 1376, whose loss prov'd a severe affliction to the king 65 39 and the whole nation, who ador'd his virtues. Towards the 66 40 decline of his life, this great prince fell into some weakneses which 67 41 have somewhat sullied the brightness of his character, and was 68 42 given up to the intrigues of his mistress, Alice Pierce, and his son, 69 43 John of Gaunt, duke of Lancaster; the former of whom robb'd 70 44 and deserted him in his last moments. He was tall, well-shap'd, 71 45 of a noble and majestic aspect; affable to the good, but severe to 72 46 the bad. He died at Shene, near Richmond, June 21, 1377, and 73 47 was buried at Westminster, after a glorious reign, in which his 74 48 subjects had enjoy'd great happiness: he rebuilt the chapel of 75 49 Windsor, of which work the famous William of Wickham was 76 50 surveyor.

12. RICHARD II. born 1366, began his reign June 2, 1377.

1377 This prince, the son of the great Edward, the Black Prince, and 78 1 grandson of the illustrious Edward III. was crown'd without op-79 2 position, twenty-four days after his grandfather's death, on which 80 3 occasion a champion first appear'd to maintain the king's title in 81 4 Westminster-hall, which has ever since been continued. Dur-82 5 ing his minority his uncles governed, and the nation suffered many 83 6 insults from France and Scotland, and a rebellion broke out, 84 7 headed by Wat Tyler, excited thereto by the ill usage of certain 85 8 collectors of the poll-tax; which arose to an astonishing height, 86 9 and he soon found his mob 100,000 strong; but after many vio-87 10 lent acts, breaking open the prisons, and beheading many of the 88 11 nobility and gentry, Tyler was stabb'd by the valiant Walworth, 89 12 lord-mayor of London, and the rebels dispers'd: for this bold 90 13 action the dagger was added to the city arms. This prince, who 91 14 was of a trifling disposition, and minded hardly any thing but his 92 15 pleasures, was subject to all the wiles of flattery, and of an in-93 16 dolent and unwarlike disposition; unhappy in the choice of his 94 17 favourites, whose bad management gained him the hatred of both 95 18 nobles and commons to such a degree, that, after a series of weak 96 19 and wicked conduct, and being fallen so low, that the city re-97 20 fused to lend him 1000 l. he was depos'd by his cousin, Henry, 98 21 of Bullinbroke, confined in the Tower, and in the year 1400, 99 22 murdered at Pontefract castle, in Yorkshire..

RED ROSE, or the House of LANCASTER.

13. HENRY IV. born 1367, began his reign September 29, 1399.

- 1400 1 Henry, immediately after his coronation, took care his parlia-01 2 ment should examine the arbitrary proceedings of Richard, and 02 3 repeal such statutes as were oppressive to the subject. His reign 03 4 was a continued series of attempts to dethrone him, and all his 04 5 endeavours were directed to keep possession of a crown, to which 05 6 he had such evidently weak pretensions. To secure his interest 06 7 with the clergy, he passed that bloody statute for burning heretics.
 07 8 Four insurrections against him defeated, the greatest of which he 08 9 quell'd himself, by the battle of Shrewsbury, wherein Henry Hot-09 10 spur, and 10,000 rebels were slain. The Welch, under Owen 10 11 Glendowr, twice defeated. A plague swept away 30,000 people 11 12 in London. Guild-hall rebuilt as it is now. Chaucer flourish'd.
 12 13 He died March 20, 1413, and was buried at Canterbury.

14. HENRY V. born 1389, began his reign March 20, 1412.

- 1413 1 If we except this prince's condescending to the clergy in their per-14 2 secution of the Lollards, scarce a nobler character ever appeared 15 3 in history; since he never oppressed his subjects, but promoted 16 4 their welfare in all his actions; and by his exploits in, and con-17 5 quest of France, holds rank amongst the foremost heroes that ever 18 6 existed. He was acknowledged as regent and heir of France. He 19 7 defeated the French at Agincourt, with only 9000 men against 20 8 150000. Near Harfleur 1500 English beat 15000 French. The 21 9 English vict'orious at sea. He died at Vincennes, Aug. 31, 1422, 22 10 and was buried at Westminster.

15. HENRY VI. born 1422, began his reign August 31, 1422.

- 1423 1 Coming to the crown, when an infant, by the untimely death of 24 2 his glorious father, his uncles the dukes of Bedford and Gloucester 25 3 had the administration of affairs committed to them, during his 26 4 minority; the former as regent of France, the latter as protector 27 5 of England. This prince proved a very weak one, and seldom 28 6 meddled in the administration of affairs, and was fitter for a pri-29 7 vate life than a crown. The principal transactions of this reign 30 8 both at home and abroad, may be ranged as follows; the battle
 31 9 of Crevant, gained with a great slaughter; the battle of Gravelle 32 10 lost; the battle of Verneuil fought, wherein the duke of Bedford 33 11 got the victory, and the French lost most of their generals; and 34 12 near 10,000 men. Sir John Mortimer, uncle to the earl of March,

135 | 13 | beheaded. Dissentions between the dukes of Glocester and Bur-
 36 | 14 | gundy about Hainault. The earl of Warwick defeated at Mon-
 37 | 15 | targis, with the loss of 1500 men. The famous siege of Orleans.
 38 | 16 | The battle of Herrings, in which 1700 English defeated 3000
 39 | 17 | French. Joan of Arc, or the Maid of Orleans makes her appear-
 40 | 18 | ance, and raises the siege of Orleans. The English lose the battle
 41 | 19 | of Patay, and their affairs are every where upon the decline. King
 42 | 20 | Henry crowned at Paris king of France. Paris taken by the 43 | 21 | French. The battle of Crottoy gained by the brave Talbot. A
 44 | 22 | great plague and famine in England and France. The king is 45 | 23 | married to Margaret of Anjou. Humphry, duke of Glocester,
 46 | 24 | murder'd. The French recover almost all Normandy. A rebel-
 47 | 25 | lion headed by Jack Cade, who defeats part of the king's army,
 48 | 26 | and entering London, beheads the lord Say; soon after, the re-
 49 | 27 | bellion is quelled, and Cade slain. The bloody civil wars between 50 | 28 | the houses of York and Lancaster, in which so many thousands
 51 | 29 | lost their lives, commence by the duke of York's marching from 52 | 30 | Wales to London with an army. The battle of St. Alban's, in 53 | 31 | which the king is beaten, with the loss of 5000 men. The battle
 54 | 32 | of Blore-heath, in which the royalists are defeated. The battle of 55 | 33 | Northampton, in which the king loses 10,000 men. The battle
 56 | 34 | of Wakefield, in which the duke of York is slain. Another
 57 | 35 | battle in which the royalists suffered. The battle of Bernard's
 58 | 36 | heath. The earl of March chosen king. Henry was murder'd in 59 | 37 | the Tower by the duke of Glocester, in 1471. Printing brought 60 | 38 | into England in this reign. A quarter of wheat was sold for a shilling, and of malt for 16 d. Leadenhall market built.

 WHITE ROSE, or the House of YORK.

16. EDWARD IV. born 1441, began his reign March 4, 1460.

1461 | 1 | This fortunate prince who was valiant and wise, but cruel and
 62 | 2 | incontinent, after many vicissitudes of fortune, became monarch
 63 | 3 | of England; but tho' his reign is dated from the 6th of March,
 64 | 4 | 1461, yet he suffered many and great difficulties afterwards, by
 65 | 5 | his own ill conduct and the vigilance and perseverance of queen
 66 | 6 | Margaret, and the Lancastrians, as may be perceived by the fol-
 67 | 7 | lowing detail of the principal events of his reign. A tradesman
 68 | 8 | hang'd, for saying he would make his son heir to the crown. The 69 | 9 | battle of Towton, wherein 36000 and upwards were killed. Ed-
 70 | 10 | ward is crown'd. The earls of Devonshire and Oxford beheaded.
 71 | 11 | The battle of Hexham. The duke of Somerset, lords Rofs and 72 | 12 | Hungerford beheaded. The king is married to Elizabeth Wood-
 73 | 13 | ville, which disgusts the great earl of Warwick, then in France,
 74 | 14 | negotiating a marriage with the king of France's sister. An insur-
 75 | 15 | rection in Yorkshire. The battle of Banbury gain'd by the male-contents,

1476	16	contents, and the earl of Pembroke and his brothers beheaded.

78	18	in which Edward is taken prisoner by the earl of Warwick. Ed-
79	19	ward escapes and returns to London; he flies to Holland. King
80	20	Henry set at liberty and reinthron'd. Edward lands with 2000
81	21	men and soon after returns to London. Henry recommitted to 82	22	the Tower. Edward dies in 1483, and was buried at Windfor.

17. EDWARD V. born 1471, began his reign April 9, 1483.

He reigned only two months and twelve days, and was smothered in the Tower, by order of his uncle, the duke of Gloucester.

18. RICHARD III. born 1443, began his reign April 9, 1483.

1483		This prince, whom all writers give a very bad character to, en-
84	1	joy'd the fruits of his dissimulations and murders but a short time,
85	2	during which, he was constantly employ'd in means to support himself in his unjust acquisition. He was killed at the decisive battle of Bosworth.

Line of TUDOR——Union of the Houses of YORK and LANCASTER.

19. HENRY VII. born 1457, began his reign August 22, 1485.

1486	1	This prince had two views in all his actions; the one was, to 87	2	keep the crown he had acquir'd, and the other to heap up riches.
88	3	His love of peace, and fear of the consequences of war, made him
89	4	see the loss of Bretagne with unconcern, and pass by many af-
90	5	fronts from the Scotch, without resentment. He was esteemed
91	6	by foreign princes; but, from his arbitrary proceedings, his avar-
92	7	itious and dark temper, not at all beloved by his people. Soon
93	8	after his victory over Richard, he made his public entry thro' the 94	9	city, to St Paul's, and took care to be crown'd before he called a
95	10	parliament to recognize his title. Henry marries Elizabeth, Ed-
96	11	ward 4th's daughter. Lambert Simnel, an impostor, comes from 97	12	Ireland with a military force, but is defeated at Stoke, and Sim-
98	13	nel is pardoned and made the king's turnspit. An insurrection in 99	14	Yorkshire, quell'd by the earl of Surrey. America discovered by 1500	15	Columbus. Perkin Warbeck personates the duke of York; but 01	16	is defeated, and obliged to surrender; but afterwards plotting to 02	17	get from the Tower with the earl of Warwick, they are dis-
03	18	covered and executed. The sweating sickness twice in England,
04	19	which carries off great multitudes, and two lord mayors and six

08	23	reign Dr. Collet founded St. Paul's school.

19. HENRY VIII. born 1492, began his reign April 22, 1509.

1509 1 Henry came to the crown at 18 years of age, was handsome, gal-10 2 lant, and had made a considerable progress in the learning of those 11 3 days; being at first designed by his father for the church; but 12 4 then he was self-conceited and presumptuous, and during the first 13 5 part of his reign so taken up with pleasures, and so dup'd by his 14 6 ministers, that he committed great faults in politics, and was 15 7 alternately imposed on by Ferdinand of Arragon, the pope, and 16 8 the French king: however, he held the foremost rank amongst 17 9 the princes of Europe, and was successful in most of his under-18 10 takings. In the decline of his days, he became, from various in-19 11 cidents, so absolutely master of his subjects, that never tyrant 20 12 reign'd more despotically; and, the obstruction the pope gave to 21 13 his divorce with Katharine, and his affected delays, inspir'd the 22 14 king with so much resentment, that he threw off the papal yoke, 23 15 and gave the first beginning to the blessed reformation in these 24 16 kingdoms. The principal events of his reign are as follow-25 17 Empson and Dudley beheaded. He marries Katharine, his bro-26 18 ther's widow. Thomas Wolsey, a butcher's son, introduced to 27 19 court; who rose to such a height of power as to govern the 28 20 king as absolutely as he did his subjects, and to be courted and 29 21 pensioned, on that account, by all the princes of Europe. Mar-30 22 quis of Dorset, with an English army in Spain. War with France.

1547 1 This excellent young prince was wise, learned, and had every 48 2 perfection both of body and mind. His reign was short, too short 49 3 to perfect the reformation of religion which he began. War with 50 4 Scotland. The Scots defeated at Mussellburgh. Somerset house 51 5 built. Christ's hospital, St. Bartholomew's, and Bridewell founded.

62 | 4 | vanced to the throne, in which, by her wise and prudent conduct
63 | 5 | she supported herself with a lustre equal, if not superior to that 64 | 6 | of any of her predecessors. She was beloved by her subjects,
65 | 7 | dreaded and courted abroad, and was the support and protectress
66 | 8 | of the protestant religion, and of oppressed people and states.
67 | 9 | Trade, to which she had a peculiar regard, rais'd its head in her
68 | 10 | reign; from which we may date the naval and maritime figure
69 | 11 | England has made ever since, and, by that means, the introduc-
70 | 12 | tion of all that learning, and those sciences, which at present dis-
71 | 13 | tinguish the inhabitants of this island. The events of her memo-
72 | 14 | rable reign of principal note, are as follow. The queen's corona-
73 | 15 | tion, performed by Oglethorpe, bishop of Carlisle. A conference

 01 | 43 | 2630 cannon, for the conquest of England, was defeated. East-
 02 | 44 | India company founded. The queen dies, March 24, 1602.

[House of STUART.

24. JAMES I. born 1566, began his reign March 24, 1603.

- 1603 | 1 | This prince, whom Elizabeth nominated as her successor, found
 04 | 2 | the kingdom in most prosperous circumstances when he came to 05 | 3 | the throne, but by his idle and irresolute conduct he rendered the 06 | 4 | united kingdoms of England and Scotland of less importance in 07 | 5 | the affairs of Europe, than the single kingdom of England had 08 | 6 | almost ever been, and left to his son an unnecessary war, an in-
 09 | 7 | cumber'd revenue, and a discontented people. In his reign
 10 | 8 | the doctrines of indefeasible hereditary right, passive obedience

26. CHARLES II. born 1630, began his reign January 30, 1649.

1649 1 The reign of this king is dated from the death of his father, tho' 50 2 for twelve years he was an exile, and various forms of government 51 3 subsisted in England, as The Commonwealth of England, during the 52 4 government of which, duke Hamilton, &c. were beheaded, the 53 5 house of lords was abolished, Ireland was recovered by Cromwell, 54 6 Montrose was hanged in Scotland, Scotland was subdu'd, the 55 7 king was defeated at Worcester, and secured himself by hiding in 56 8 an oak after the battle; the Dutch were defeated in five sea-fights 57 9 and Cromwell dissolving the victorious rump, on Dec. 16, 1653, 58 10 was declared Protector of the Commonwealth of England, &c. Under 59 11 this form of government the English name and reputation was 60 12 carried as high by the protector, as it ever had been under our 61 13 most successful monarchs. The protector dies, and his son, 62 14 Richard, is proclaimed, who is soon obliged to resign, upon which 63 15 the long parliament is restored, who vacating the house, a 64 16 free parliament is chosen, who call in the king. The king re-65 17 stored, and makes his public entry. The regicides tried and ex-

29. GEORGE I. born 1660, began his reign August 1, 1714.

1715 1 Upon the demise of queen Anne, the regency, pursuant to the 16 2 act for settling the crown on the illustrious house of Hanover, 17 3 proclaimed king George I. who, soon after, left his German do-18 4 minions, and, coming over, made his public entry thro' the city, 19 5 with the utmost magnificence, and was crown'd. The next year 20 6 a rebellion broke out in the north of England and in Scotland, 21 7 headed by the earl of Mar, who proclaimed the pretender; but 22 8 the English rebels being defeated at Preston, and the Scotch at 23 9 Sheriff-muir, by the duke of Argyle; and the pretender, who 24 10 had landed in Scotland, flying, that formidable conspiracy was 25 11 quelled; the government shewing the greatest clemency towards 26 12 the criminals, only few being executed, amongst whom were the 27 13 earl of Derwentwater and viscount Kenmore. His majesty died on a journey to Hanover, and was there buried.

30. GEORGE II. born 1683, began his reign June 11, 1727.

1728 1 His present most gracious majesty, was crowned October 11, 29 2 1727, whose mild and equal government has secured him the love 30 3 and affection of this free people, to a degree that all the arts of 31 4 faction have been insufficient to remove; at the same time that 32 5 the number and virtues of his descendants, seem, in all probability, 33 6 to secure to our posterity, the invaluable blessings of our religion 34 7 and liberties. In the year 1745, the pretender's son landed in Scotland,

1735 8 Scotland, to whom the disaffected Highland clans resorting, a 36 9 rebellion broke out in that kingdom, which rose to such a height, 37 10 that his majesty's forces were defeated at the action of Preston-38 11 Pans, and put into disorder and forced to retreat from the battle 39 12 of Falkirk; and Carlisle, in England, was in the possession of the 40 13 rebels. The young adventurer, by forced marches, penetrated as 41 14 far as Derby, and the most fatal consequences were apprehended 42 15 from the progress of this rabble; when his royal highness the 43 16 duke, inspiring our forces, obliged them to a precipitate retreat, 44 17 pursued them into Scotland, as far as the Highlands and, by the 45 18 ever memorable and decisive battle of Culloden, entirely quell'd 46 19 the rebellion; for which the earl of Kilmarnock, the lords Bal-47 20 merino and Lovat, and Mr. Radcliffe were beheaded, and an in-48 21 considerable number of the common sort executed. His majesty's 49 22 eldest daughter is widow to the late serene prince stadtholder of 50 23 Holland, and the two youngest are married to the K. of Denmark 51 24 and P. Frederick of Hesse. Upon the death of that excellent prince, Frederick, prince of Wales, his eldest son, prince George, succeeded him, and, at his majesty's desire, the princess dowager of Wales is appointed, by act, regent, in case of his own demise. May God render this provision useless, by preserving his majesty's valuable life.

Orders of KNIGHTHOOD in Great-Britain.

(1) THE order of the GARTER, is the most noble and antient of all the secular orders in the world: it was instituted in 1350, by that heroic prince Edward III. who called it the order of the garter, as that was the only part of the habit of the order first worn, as a tie of affection and love for each other; and, to prove the sovereign's honourable intentions, the motto, Honi soit qui mal y pense, Evil be to him that evil thinks, was wrote on it, in French, which was then the most familiar court language, the king being possessed of great part of France.

This noble order consists of the sovereign of Great-Britain, and 25 companions, who are usually installed on St. George's day, their patron; in Windsor chapel. The garter is worn on the left leg, between the knee and the calf, the colour blue, greatly enrich'd with gold, pearls, precious stones, and a buckle of gold: they wear also a broad blue ribband over the left shoulder, brought under the right arm, with St. George's picture at the bottom, enamelled and set with diamonds. The left side of their coats is also adorned with the sun in its glory, of silver embroidery, commonly called a star, and at high feasts they commonly wear a surcoat, a mantle, a cap, a collar of SS, composed of roses enamelled red, within a garter enamelled blue; the motto in letters of gold. This society is a college or corporation, having a great seal, besides the seal of the sovereign. The bishop of Winchester is prelate, the bishop of Salisbury chancellor and the dean of Windsor register of the order: Garter, king at arms, is the principal lay officer, and there is also an usher of the garter.

The

The society maintain liberally, at Windsor, 26 decay'd gentlemen, called the poor knights of Windsor. Since this order was instituted, there have been of it 8 emperors, 29 foreign kings, and a multitude of other sovereign princes, who used to be rank'd according to their creation; but now according to their rank. The present sovereign and knights are as follow;

(2) The Order of ST. ANDREW, or the Thistle, was founded by James the Fifth of Scotland, for himself and 12 brethren, in imitation of our Saviour and his 12 Apostles. About the time of the Reformation the order was dropped, and was not resumed again till the time of James II. who created 8 knights; but the revolution unsettled it again, and it was neglected, till Queen Anne, in 1703, restored it to its primitive state; and it was further improved by King George I. The ensigns are, the image of St. Andrew, vested in cloth of gold, with the white cross of his martyrdom on his breast, which is pendant to the collar of the order, and is worn on the 30th of November, and other extraordinary occasions. The collar is of pure gold, fashioned into thistles and sprigs of rue, link'd together, enan'elled vert, the one not to be handled without being hurt, and the other an antidote against infection: whence the motto, Nemo me impune lacessit. The knights wear a cross and thistle on the left breast, and a green ribband spread over the left shoulder, and brought under the right arm, at the bottom of which is the image of St. Andrew. The present knights are;

(3) The highest order of Gentry, and the only one amongst them that is hereditary, is that of Baronets, first instituted in 1611, by James I. who limited them to 200; but his successors did not stick to that number, so that now there are above 500. To be qualified for it, a man must be born a gentleman, and have a good reputation and estate.

(4) The Knights of the BATH, are so called, from their bathing, used before they were created. Henry IV. founded this order in 1399, and it was established by King George I. in 1725, and made a military order, for ever, for 36 knights, beside the sovereign. The symbol is a sceptre, 3 imperial crowns, with a rose and thistle in a circle of gold, and this motto, Tria juncta in uno; which badge, and a crimson ribband, is daily worn, as the knights of the garter do theirs.

The present Knights of the Bath are,

N. B. The Bank keeps the same Holidays as the S. S. H.

An Account of Time, and the Difference of Old and New Style.

THE Tropical Year, according to Sir Isaac Newton's Theory of the Moon, and the commonly receiv'd Opinion of Astronomers, contains 365 D. 5 H. 48 M. 57 S.

The Julian Style is completed in Four Years, which contain (in all) 1461 Days, the Fourth Part of which, or the Julian Year, is 365 D. 6 H.

The Gregorian Style is completed in Four Centuries, which contain (in all) 146097 Days, the Four Hundredth part of which, or the Gregorian Year, is 365 D. 5 H. 49 M. 12 S.

Thus the Tropical Year being the least of the Three, the Sun (or rather the Earth) will return to the Equinoxes sooner than according to the Julian or Gregorian Account; that is to say, the Year, according to both the Old and New Style, after all their Intercalations and Corrections, will something exceed the true Tropical Year, but the Error of the Old Style will be much more than of the New Style. If the Tropical Year be rightly given above, the Julian Error in One Year will be 11 M. 3 S. in 130 Years — — — 23 H. 56 M. 30 S. or 4 D. 3 M. 30 S. and in 5760 Years — — — 44 D. 4 H. 48 M.

while the Gregorian Error in One Year is no more than 15 S.

in 130 Years — — — 32 M. 20 S.

and in 5760 Years — — — 24 H. or 1 D.

The Error therefore of the Old Style is to that of the New as 221 to 5, or nearly as 44 to 1.

From A. D. 1582 (when the Calendar was corrected by Gregory XIII.) to A. D. 1752 (a Period of 170 Years) the Error crept into this Style, according to the above computation, is no more than 42 M. 30 S. This Account of the Errors in each Style differs a little from what is mention'd of them in the Earl of Macclesfield's Speech, occasion'd, I suppose, by his Tropical Year being something less than it has been already represented; his Lordship's Tropical Year seems to be 365 D. 5 H. 48 M. 55 S. which renders the Julian Error in One Year 11 M. 55 S.

in 130 Years — — — 24 H. 40 S. or 1 Day 50 S.

and in 5082 Years — — — 39 D. 2 H. 45 M. 30 S.

and the Gregorian Error becomes in One Year — — — 17 S.

in 130 Years — — — 36 M. 50 S.

and in 5082 Years — — — 23 H. 59 M. 54 S. or 1 D. 6 S.

According to this last mention'd Tropical Year the Error of the Old Style will be to that of the New as 665 to 17, or pretty nearly as 39 to 1, and the Error of the Gregorian Style since its institution A. D. 1582 to A. D. 1752 will be 49 M. 10 S.
